Pretty plain vanilla for-profit structure. So kinda hard to push a narrative that doesn't involve investors being very focused on ROI. I'm a super fan of capitalism and making tons of money doing great things, but not sure if this correlates with the "noble cause for humanity, not doing it to make money" narrative.

Did he/would he offer E a board seat?

Elon--

Please see attached, look forward to feedback.

Also, my current thought is that I won't take any equity. I'm not doing this for the money anyway, and I like the idea of being completely unconflicted and just focused on the best outcome for the world. If it appeared at some point we weren't going to build AGI but were going to build something valuable, then maybe I'd want equity then.
